New Trial Is Asked Sentence Is Delayed

SAN JOSE, Sept. 19.—UP—From the moment of the death sentence on David Lamson, convicted of murdering his attractive wife Allene today was postponed until 2 p. m. Friday to permit his attorneys to prepare arguments for a new trial.

Meanwhile, Coroner Amos Williams set 1 p. m. Friday as the time for an inquest into Mrs. Lamson's death, and subpoenaed Lamson as a witness.

Williams had been forced to delay the inquest because investigators were reluctant to disclose their evidence against Lamson in advance of the trial for his life.

A possibility existed that the defense would benefit from the delayed inquest. Lamson, young sales manager of the Stanford University Press, has steadfastly insisted he knew nothing of his wife's death until he found her body in the bathroom of their home last May 30.

Another possible defense, if a stranger was seen lurking about the Lamson home the day of Allene's death, and might have killed her, was discarded at the trial. Lamson's attorneys now claim to have new evidence, supposedly regarding the "shabby stranger." The inquest may offer an opportunity to present it.

An open verdict by the coroner's jury would be a valuable contribution to the defense claims that the conviction of Lamson by the trial

Car Driver Test Case Is Is Un-Hurt Taken Under In Accident New NRA Law

John Rodriguez, 1145 North Thirteenth street, narrowly escaped death or serious injuries in a spectacular automobile accident at Twenty-third and Roosevelt late yesterday afternoon.

Rodriguez received only a few minor cuts that did not necessitate hospital treatment.

According to police reports the man was driving alone in his sedan, of a vintage that almost predated prohibition. He was proceeding at a slow speed down Twenty-third street.

Near the intersection the front wheels of his ancient chariot became locked, in some manner. Rodriguez, in a desperate effort, attempted to gain control of his car.

He gave the steering wheel a sudden jerk, the wheels freed and the car tipped over on its side. Rodriguez climbed out of the wreckage, considerably more frightened than hurt.

With the aid of a patrolman, who was sent to the scene at the telephoned report of the wreck, and a number of interested spectators, Rodriguez was able to place his car back upon its four wheels. He then climbed in, started the motor, and drove off.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 19.—UP—Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, identified Albert L. Bates late today as one of two machine gun armed men who invaded the Urschel home and spirited him away to be held for $200,000 ransom.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Urschel and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jarrett, the latter guests at the Urschel home the night of the kidnapping, identified Bates as one of the two abductors who carried away the two men and then released Jarrett.

DAVE STARTS NEW FIGHT

LOST CHILD IS GUEST OF COP'S WIFE

Bound to see the world, and traveling rapidly, a three and a half year old Berkeley girl was stopped at San Pablo and Nevin avenues about noon yesterday by Inspector of Police Harry Donnelly.

The girl said her name was Dolores Rogers, but could not tell Donnelly where she lived, or where she was going.

Inspector Donnelly picked up the little miss and took her to his home at 1920 Nevin avenue, where she was placed in the custody of Mrs. Donnelly. He then reported the occurrence to police headquarters. Police then awaited developments.

Throughout the afternoon the child enjoyed herself at the Donnelly home, playing and chatting with Mrs. Donnelly.

Police became just a bit worried over the whole affair, as no child was reported missing throughout the day.

Then, at about six o'clock last night, police reported that a little girl was missing from her home in Berkeley. She was Dolores Rogers and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Rogers reside at 1428 San Pablo avenue, Berkeley. The child last home at about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, they reported.

How she came to Richmond, or who brought her there, the child was unable to explain. Her most lucid statement was that "she just got there anyhow."

Later in the evening a relative called at the Donnelly home and returned the child to Berkeley, following her "party call" to Mrs. Donnelly.

SEARCHERS TO CONTINUE HUNT TODAY

Missing since last Saturday, Antonio Bena, of El Cerrito, an employee of a local manufacturing plant, was still the object of a wide-spread search last night.

Bena is lost somewhere on Mount Raymond, in Mariposa county, a heavily wooded, "wild section" of the state.

John Castagnetto, of Mariposa county, told United Press last night that forest rangers and mountaineers, who have been conducting the search, have been unable so far to find any trace of the missing man.

However, it was stated that the search will be renewed for him at daybreak this morning, with more volunteers to aid in the search.

Confidence was expressed by searchers last night that Bena was still alive, but that he had become so confused in his efforts to reach civilization that he might have wandered into some heretofore inaccessible spot on the mountain.

Bena was lost last Saturday when he became separated from a party of local hunters. The search for him was started Sunday, when he failed to return to camp.

Search yesterday failed to bring any clue to his whereabouts, though search was made of a canyon, where hunters reported they had heard someone crying for help.

Yesterday the family of the missing man offered a reward of $250 to the person or persons who find the missing man. News of the reward was made public by Postmaster John A. Miller, who was one of the members of the ill-fated hunting party. Miller is now in Richmond but is keeping in close touch with the situation.

It was hinted yesterday that an airplane may be hired to take part in the search.

The president was represented by Senator Key Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, as feeling that the signing of the coal code marked the turning point in the recovery program, and that a continuation of the present program of increasing credit and encouraging free flow of money already available was the best course for the time being.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19. —UP—The Pacific Gas and Electric company earns a net profit of 5.74 percent on its natural gas sales, and 6.64 percent on electricity sales, the company's rate experts testified today at a Railroad Commission rate hearing.

SHIRT SLEEVE DIPLOMACY

Two young college men from North Carolina, seeking government jobs in the Capital, were referred to the NRA. They took up places in the long line of applicants waiting to see Linton Collins, personnel officer who does NRA's hiring.

After several days of patient waiting, and still a considerable distance from Collins' desk, they decided to resort to strategy. They had noticed NRA employees dashing about in their shirt-sleeves, and everyone thus attired passed in and out of Collins' office without challenge.

Next morning they parked their diver outside NRA headquarters, divested themselves of their coats and hats, and went to Collins' office. They walked in without interference, told him about their strategy, were promptly hired.

TAX PUBLICITY

The President has a hidden ace up his sleeve in putting pressure on big gold hoarders, profiteers, and other foes of his recovery program.

This is the power to make public income tax returns. Most people have forgotten this, but the last session of Congress voted him such discretionary authority. The Progressives wanted to make publication mandatory, but the Democratic floor leaders balked. The President suggested the compromise and it was accepted.

With the battle lines tightening on the various recovery fronts, the President has been quietly surveying the scope of his powers to combat the Administration's foes. Among his close advisers, the regarded income tax card is considered an ace of the New Deal.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has recommended against playing it. Too many examples of tax evasions would be shown up, I. K. officials say.

DEPOSITORS EARLY PAYOFF IS PREDICTED

DETROIT, Sept. 19. (UP)—An early payoff to depositors which would release nearly $100,000,000 of deposits tied up in Detroit's two largest banking institutions, was seen here tonight.

If the comptroller of the currency approves the Guardian National Bank of Commerce will be able to make a payment early in October and the First National Bank of November 1, receivers of the banks announced.

The announcement followed the ruling of Judge Harry B. Keldan who, sitting as a one-man grand jury investigating the banks' affairs, ruled that both institutions were solvent on February 14, the day the government ordered them closed.

Approximately $312,000,000 of depositors' monies have been tied up for more than seven months.

Each of the banks previously paid 10 percent to depositors when loans were obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the corporation, had announced last July that he would grant the loans if approved by the currency controller.

This was during the height of the bank investigation. Federal bank examiners had reported the banks had insufficient collateral and additional loans were withheld.

The judge's ruling discredited the examiners' findings saying their report was not based on knowledge of the true conditions of the banks. Senator James C. McCreary, who had opposed the loans, said his opinion had been based on "information and belief" obtained at the Treasury Department during the Republican administration.

A. F. L. Charges Violations of Recovery Act

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—UP—Organized labor is prepared to strike when necessary to force employers to obey the national recovery act, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, indicated tonight in a statement announcing that he had filed protests against alleged violations of the law.

Green charged great corporations had attempted to evade the labor protective clause by forming company unions. These unions the labor leader asserted, are "a fraud from start to finish."

Green issued a list of 16 corporations against which he said he had complained. These included E. I. DuPont de Nemours and two corporations reportedly controlled by former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and associates.

Every Constipated Person Should Try This

Stop taking pills, salts and other harsh physics that irritate and weaken the bowels. Such things merely force a movement without cleansing the liver of its excess bile, which explains why your constipation always returns in a day or two and you find it necessary to use more physics.

Everybody ought to know that a torpid, lazy liver clogged with bile is the chief cause of habitual constipation. This stored-up bile poisons the whole system and upsets digestion, resulting in "bad breath, headache, coated tongue, yellow skin, sour stomach, gas, dizzy spells or high blood pressure. After a good intestinal cleansing with Plantax, which also tones up and regulates the liver, these symptoms usually disappear completely.

Plantax is made from the juices or extracts of harmless medicinal herbs—Nature's own remedies. It works gently, mildly, but most effectively. Large bottle $1 at any good drug store.

CHECK UP ON LICENSES IS BEING MADE

A statewide check-up of retail merchants to determine whether they have obtained licenses under the new sales tax act began yesterday on orders of the State Board of Equalization.

In Alameda and Contra Costa counties, sixteen deputies were carrying out the board's order under the direction of Harry A. Mosher, sales tax administrator for the two counties.

According to a telegram received by Mosher from Fred E. Stewart, member of the State Board of Equalization, thousands of merchants throughout the State have neglected to obtain their permits.

"The board will invoke penalties against those failing to comply with licensing requirements of the sales tax act," Stewart informed Mosher.

According to Section 12 of the sales tax act, "It shall be unlawful for any person to engage in or transact business as a retailer with in this State unless a permit or permits shall have been issued to him" within thirty days after the effective date of the act, which was August 1.

Each day in which a retailer continues to do business without a license from the Board of Equalization constitutes a separate offense, subject to a separate penalty, Mosher explained today.

License applications are filed directly with the Board of Equalization and must be accompanied by a fee of $1. License application may be obtained from Mosher's office in the Financial Center Building here.

The State Board of Equalization is empowered under the law to close up retail establishments which neglect to obtain a permit. This should have immediate attention of every retailer in the district.

The fact is, I was insulted the one time I did go to the club to play cards. I lost a lot of money. Phil and I both lost money, and we didn't have any way to pay it. MARVEL got up slowly from the window seat and, crossing to him, laid her hand on his forehead and smoothed his curly red hair.

"You poor kid. You have had a rotten time of it. But don't worry. There are a lot of other tournaments this summer that you've been in. I'll find you one and one of these days we'll show everybody what we can do."

She walked slowly over to the piano, then swung round with her back to him.

"I'm at the California Club in a few days. But I think I'd better go back to California. I'm sort of afraid to stay here. I've lucked, somehow."

Marvel thrust back her head and sang. She often laughed in that way because it showed her lovely throat to the best advantage.

"I never heard anything like this," said Howard. "You know perfectly well you're going to stay right here and show them what you can do. Just wait till the next time you go back to New York and you win."

Bob smiled faintly. "I don't think so. Maybe I will if I try hard enough. She said I'd see you next time."

Marvel stared at him. "She? Who do you mean by she?"

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go.

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

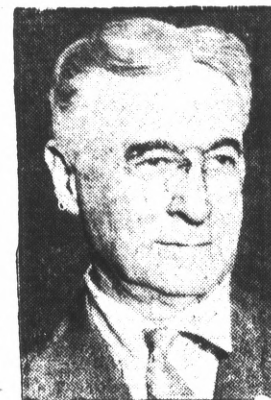

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25¢ at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Improper Nourishment Results in a Weakened Physique

A SIGNIFICANT news item from Berlin, Germany, concerns the demand for well-built girls who are needed as models in dress-making establishments.

There are more applicants than models in the fashion world. The demand for well-built girls who are needed as models in dress-making establishments is so great that the models are being sought from all over the world. The models are being sought from all over the world. The models are being sought from all over the world.

UNFORTUNATELY the situation is not limited to any one country and we are likely to hear more of this type of proclamation as the years pass. The medical associations of the country are already sounding a warning as to what may be expected from these recent years of unemployment and depleted funds. A recent school survey on the Pacific Coast gave the astonishing and alarming figures concerning the physical condition of school children as revealed in a recent health census. As high as eighty per cent is given as the number of young girls who will enter school this coming school year in a condition of undernourishment according to scientific standards.

THIS statement coming from the nutrition department of the University College at Los Angeles says volumes for the evidence that by all too many families, economy has been spelled in terms of food. The head of this special department, Dr. Paul Bonequet, has concluded an eight-year period of research on symptoms of malnutrition in both appearance and behavior of young children.

"THE principal cause of malnutrition," says this distinguished authority, "is the lack of importance given to the meal time period in the daily occupation of the child." He goes further and makes a special claim for the opportunity offered by the eating periods to teach socialization and a knowledge of food values in practical education.

THIS indifference to the value of regular and adequate consumption of food is quite aside from the deplorable economic necessity of doing without sufficient food because of lack of means. The survey mentioned extended into as many as fifty families who were in moderate circumstances. The average calorie figures were found to be far below the scientific maintenance diet for health and vigor.

ONE special case was of a 15-year-old girl who stopped her daily intake at eight hundred calories where she should have had twenty-two hundred. I am quite aware that these warnings follow various intimations in this column that, as adults, we frequently eat beyond our requirements. But too much cannot be said about the extreme importance of using judgment in fitting the daily intake of nutrition to the actual requirements of our bodies. Young growing bodies must have not only a replacement for daily wear but steady nourishment for proper strength and development.

THOSE of us who have complained our growth need only a reasonable restoration for waste and repair. Providing less than the standard requirements in the one case means an imperfect and depleted body structure. Too much indulgence on the part of the adult over-loads the mechanism of the system and unless elimination has special attention, a condition of congestion and obstruction is bound to follow.

QUESTION: What can be done about excessive perspiration in the palm of the hands?
ANSWER: In the healthy person, perspiration in any area is only a sign of active sweat glands in that spot. There is no common remedy. Some of the remedies advertised for the armpits help some. Others keep a bottle of rubbing alcohol or witch hazel nearby. If the perspiration is a symptom of weakness, or undernourishment, a physician must be consulted.

Soda in Vegetables
A pinch of bicarbonate of soda in green vegetables will hasten the cooking and keep the vegetables a bright green. However, this pinch of soda destroys some of the vitamins and should be avoided for steady use.

LOVELY BROWS IS FIRST RULE OF EYE MAKE-UP

By JACQUELINE HUNT

STUDY carefully the make-up of your eyes, for they are the most important of all facial features. No other feature requires so much skill in the application of make-up and no other can be changed so readily.

There are more applicants than models in the fashion world. The demand for well-built girls who are needed as models in dress-making establishments is so great that the models are being sought from all over the world. The models are being sought from all over the world. The models are being sought from all over the world.

serious and prim, or you can create the illusion of mystery and aloofness, as you wish.

Neatly shaped brows that give the proper balance and expression to your face are essential before you can use the other beautifiers — effectively — that give depth and mystery to your eyes.

First of all, let's analyze your eyebrow situation and then we will discuss the means of correcting it. Perhaps your brows are too heavy or too scant; perhaps the shape isn't as nice as it should be; perhaps they grow too far up on your forehead and give an unbalanced, staring expression to your eyes. Perhaps your eyebrows are too short at their outer ends.

In changing the shape of your brows you will find your jar of foundation cream or a stick of theatrical grease a help. Let's suppose that your eyebrows are too wide. First try narrowing them slightly by pulling away all of the hairs that are straggling along out of line. If they are still too wide, decide whether you will look nicest with the extra hairs removed from the upper or the lower part of the brows. If your imagination isn't working well, try covering the lower part of the brows with a thin line of grease paint. This will appear to raise your eyebrows slightly. Does your face look nicer this way? Then put away the hairbrush from the lower edge of the brow until it is sufficiently shaped and narrowed.

For brows that are too thin and light colored, an eyebrow pencil will do the trick. Get a hard pencil that will not smudge and trace lightly over your brows several times until they are darkened sufficiently. If they are too short, extend them by combing the line with your eyebrow pencil.

Do you feel that the shape of your brows needs changing? Then trace in the line that you feel is most becoming — trace carefully because you are going to freeze out the hairs that fall outside of that pattern. Avoid pulling out too many hairs, or the wrong ones. Remember that thin, pencil lines are no longer fashionable and that scanty brows detract from your facial expression.

And here is a rule to keep in mind while you are changing the shape of your brows — if your face is long and thin your facial contours will appear more balanced and attractive if your eyebrows are neatly arched and extended down to a point in line with the outer corners of your eyes; if your face is broad or round your eyebrows may be a straighter, shorter line and do not need to come so far down at the corners.

If — away back in the pencilled eyebrow era — you have had the extra hairs removed by electrolysis, you can fill them in. How? By those artificial eyelashes that we have jokingly referred to several times. The individual hairs are pasted on with a special adhesive liquid that is outside of that pattern. Avoid pulling out too many hairs, or the wrong ones. Remember that thin, pencil lines are no longer fashionable and that scanty brows detract from your facial expression.

When your brows are properly shaped you can darken your lashes with black, brown or dark blue mascara and use the eye shadows as they are apt to make the eyes look as though you have been crying. And here's a trick in darkening your lashes — hold your finger under the lashes so the hairs rest on it, then brush on the color. This insures your getting the color evenly distributed and without smudges.

A Reader Writes:

My baby's first shoes were made of suede, and after he had worn them for a little while the soles got very smooth and slippery. This meant tumbles — and tears. To overcome this difficulty I found that by rubbing the soles with coarse sandpaper at frequent intervals they remained rough and baby was able, therefore, to toddle about in perfect safety.

::: SPEAKING OF STYLE :::

By IRENE VAIL

New York — It is as certain as anything in the fashion world can be that these broad, square shoulders we have lately acquired are here to stay. If they are not actually square, they are broad, and inclined to be angular. There may be a pointed effect, upward, sometimes both upward and outward, but the real thing to remember is that we are shoulder to shoulder with the above that must be disposed of when putting on one's coat the best way possible. The old thrill of tucking in the big sleeve is back along with the bicycle and the roller skates and such things as thrilled those who were in their prime when the Marie was sunk.

The Middy Collar
Perhaps it is because anything that reminds the debutante of Annapolis has a very good chance of being popular, or perhaps it is only because of the squared lines, but the middy collar has been working its way up the ranks. Ever so many late summer collections are putting one or two in their "k" dresses. Some are regulation middy collars but others and newer ones are quite cut at front giving a hint as to what is likely to come forth as collar ideas for fall. They are cut to give a very broad squared line at the shoulders. The latter were shown by the couturiers.

Oriental Military
Themes decidedly Oriental motivate the initial collection of military. It was her inspiration from its worn by Mongolian tribes in or near Tibet. The Tibetan influence is especially noted in peaked caps with cuffs, the latter developed in fur or feathers.

Tasty Dishes for Today

FOOD ECONOMY NOW ESSENTIAL

By JUDITH WILSON

THE vegetable and fresh fruit stands offer first aid to thrifty homemakers who have had their budgets strained or unbalanced by the rising food prices. Prices of seasonable fruits and vegetables are now at the mid-season low, the supply is plentiful and the quality is excellent and varied. Fine, full-kernelled corn, new lima beans, new peas and the little green kohlrabi are back again and suggest all sorts of attractive, quickly prepared menus at a moderate cost.

The inexpensive menus given above can be prepared in about forty-five minutes or a little longer for the beginning cook. The dessert in each case is prepared first as it takes a bit longer to prepare and cook than the other items. Incidentally the veal patties in the first menu will interest you since they can be prepared in a few minutes, are inexpensive and a variation from the usual Hamburger steak. Ground veal, well seasoned, or a mixture of pork and veal are good for these thin patties. You can cook them under the broiler while the potatoes and tomatoes are cooking.

Grilled Potatoes
For the potatoes, peel four medium sized ones, slice very thin and let sit in cold water for a few minutes. Drain on a clean cloth then arrange the slices overlapping in the baking pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot liberally with butter, then sprinkle lightly with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a hot oven until tender, then brown under a medium broiler flame. The tomatoes, sliced butternut and sprinkled with salt and grated cheese are put to broil at the same time.

Vegetable Chowder
The vegetable chowder in the second menu makes a good main course for a simple meal. Chop the following vegetables — two medium onions, one large stalk celery, one sprig parsley, two carrots, two potatoes and two tomatoes — then scrape enough fresh corn from the cob to make one cup. Fry three slices of salt pork diced, add one-half cup butter or bacon fat and cook the vegetables in this for five minutes. Add two quarts of meat stock and cook slowly until the potatoes are tender. Season to taste and serve toasted crackers or breadsticks.

Pineapple Pudding
Pineapple pudding is elaborate-sounding but inexpensive dessert for this simple meal. Scald two cups milk then remove from the fire and add one cup toasted bread crumbs, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, and one-half cup melted butter, then three well-beaten eggs, the grated rind and juice of one-half lemon and one-half cup chopped walnut meats. Mix well. Put one-half of the mixture in a buttered baking dish, cover with one and one-half cups drained, crushed canned or fresh

Cherry Shrub

Cherry shrub is another beverage that you will like. Pit two quarts of very ripe cherries and mash them through a coarse strainer. Make a syrup of two pounds of sugar (four cups) and two quarts of water and cook for five minutes, then put in the cherries and one-half cup of lemon juice. Chill thoroughly and serve with a red cherry floating in each glass. This will serve fifteen generously.

Paternal Blunder

A child understands control. It is the one element capable of making him aware of relationships. Mother always remains a closer "relation" than dad by virtue of the fact that she can exercise control over a child in one way or another. This even when the dad is better loved.

Ousted Daddies

Several young mothers of my acquaintances, who get along nicely with their respective spouses, assume the full responsibility of raising the children from cradle and with their husbands' consent. The reason given is that parenthood is a full-time job; that they haven't very much to do away, so they might as well devote themselves to motherhood. The fathers have become lazy to their duty, as a result. When consulted by the children, they say, "Ask your mother."

When the children are older

When the children are older, they will go directly to mother for advice or permission, and they will take their confidences along with them too. At last they will realize the futility of asking dad. Of what use is it that daddy knows interesting facts and stories, if he isn't an intimate part of their daily lives? A father has a duty to perform as a parent as well as a friend. Children need the masculine point of view, and mother benefits by it too. The ideal arrangement is when both parents put together. It is too top-heavy a load, for one.

Home-Making

By ALINE STERN

When making salad it is a good idea to mix in occasionally some of those young new dandelions. Turnip tops, mustard and beet greens are also nice.

Here is a helpful hint for the novice at baking. One egg is the equivalent of one-half teaspoon of baking powder.

Cheese will not dry out if wrapped in a fresh cloth which has been dampened in vinegar. Store in the refrigerator, or any cool, dry place.

When making cottage cheese, the curdling process is hastened if salt is added at the beginning.

With soups and gravies, salt should be added at the end of the cooking period.

To remove ink stains, moisten spots with salt and lemon juice and lay article in sun. If this does not do the trick satisfactorily, pour boiling water over spots. Rinse in sudsy water.

Fruit flavored milk drinks are refreshing and nutritious. Boil fruit, peaches, plums, pears, prunes, etc., to a thick soupy consistency. Sweeten to taste. When cool add two or three teaspoonsful of this syrup to each glass of milk and serve with chopped ice.

QUEEN OF THE NATIONAL CHERRY FESTIVAL

There is nothing like a rehearsal, so Morella Oldham, who will preside as queen over the National Cherry Festival at Traverse City, Mich., tries out her crown. The colorful festival celebrates the harvest of cherries in the midwest fruit belt.

PROFILES For Today

By TALBOT LAKE

The American Navy Is Reborn . . . A General With Two Countries

THE United States Navy has two staunch supporters. First, there is the sea-going President Roosevelt, and second, Claude Augustus Swanson, the genial Virginian, who for more than four months has been Secretary of the Navy.

Today the United States stands a poor third in maintaining her Navy at the authorized treaty strength. Great Britain takes first place and Japan, second place. Late last month, Secretary Swanson announced officially that the Government had revised its policy with regard to the Navy. He announced that the Administration's policy was "to create, maintain, and operate a navy second to none, and in conformity with treaty provisions."

Who is this man who is winning the admiration of naval men? Well his ancestors settled and established the town of Swansville, Va. for one thing. He has spent forty years of his twenty-one years in public office. At 16 he taught school, a headless boy instructing men in the ways of the three R's. When he completed his education, he opened a law office in Chatham, Va., and started to dabble in politics.

Young Swanson rose set sail on his career. For a dozen years he was a Congressman before he became Virginia's Governor. In 1910 when his term as Governor ended he was named to fill an unexpired term in the Senate in which he served until appointed Secretary of the Navy by President Roosevelt.

As a Senator, Mr. Swanson was interested in naval and foreign affairs and his love for this particular branch of the service grew when he served as a member and for a time as chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee. It was while he was chairman of the committee in the last years of the "World War" that Mr. Swanson became intimately associated with Mr. Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy. The two worked in close harmony and both shared the dream of an "American empire of the fortresses second to none."

Secretary Swanson, in a recent speech, took up for discussion some of the arguments which are made against the maintenance of a Navy such as he and President Roosevelt expect to see Congress authorize to bring the American sea forces up to treaty strength.

"I know," said Secretary Swanson, "a lot of very sincere people regard war-ships as not only superfluous luxury, but actually consider them as an incentive to war. An ideal world could possibly get along without a navy, but in the present state of the world, civilization is quite impossible. We do know that wars have come with surprising unexpectedness."

ALTHOUGH it may sound very strange, one of the greatest colonial legends in the development of French North Africa is Jacques Aldebert de Chambrun, a man of two countries. General de Chambrun was born in Washington, D. C., the fourth direct descendant of Lafayette among present day descendants, tracing a lineage through Virginia. Youngest daughter of Lafayette, whose name was chosen for the name of her father's most famous campaign. Thus it was that Virginia, Maryland and other states granted American citizenship to Lafayette and his descendants.

His father represented France in the United States when Jacques was born and years later he was to serve France in Washington, just as his father had before him. Young Jacques de Chambrun was graduated by the Ecole de Guerre in 1908 and from the Centre des Hautes Etudes Militaires in 1922. He was the only corps general to use from the ranks. He was commander of the Legion of Honor and received eleven citations and six military grades for exceptional services in the field. During the World War, General de Chambrun acted as liaison officer between the French and American high commands. When hostilities ceased he was requested by the American Government to aid in the creation of the War College at Washington where he gave a highly successful course of lectures in 1920. Since then he has served with distinction in various branches of the French Army. His wife, the former Clara Longworth, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Tailored Pajamas

Scores of women like tailored pajamas — mannish or perhaps it is better to say boyish designs. This sort of sleeping or lounging garment calls for a robe rather than a negligee. If one goes in for ribbons and laces and ruffles and even puff sleeves, a negligee in the frivolous manner is what you need to complete the picture, not forgetting that your nudes must step right along on the line chosen.

MEDDLER OFTEN WRECKS LIVES OF NEWLYWEDS

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

A LARGE percentage of men and women appoint themselves investigators of conditions, or people, or institutions or something they are convinced needs reforming. What is the matter with business, concerns the rank and file of men. What is the matter with marriage, concerns women of an investigating turn of mind. Men too, leap into the breach and contribute their bit to the masses of misinformation compiled on this important subject.

ONE of the things the matter with marriage is that too many cooks are spoiling the matrimonial broth. Everyone has some sort of theory about it. The poor bewildered newlyweds listen to them all and in consequence get hopelessly muddled. Why not let them work out their own destiny? Meddlers usually set the worst of the way. Even when the intentions in the world they often make a sorry mess of the lives they are determined to control.

RECENTLY two University of Chicago professors of something or other decided to question some 500 couples in the hope of finding out what was wrong, if anything, with their marriages. They came to the amazing conclusion that there were at the bottom of plenty of married misery.

"IF THE wife has brothers and sisters the chances for happiness are decreased by 20 per cent," it was reported.

WELL, there is nothing startlingly new in that discovery. Everybody knows that if one could find a Topsy who "just grew up" and had no family or relatives at all, that the chances for an ideal marriage would be greater. Most of us, however, have to contract marriages with men or women who have a full allotment of fathers and mothers not to mention brothers and sisters. While these well-meaning souls do not contribute anything much but discord, as a general thing, there are exceptions as any fair-minded person will admit.

A MORE interesting, and unusual conclusion reached was: "If the father advises against a marriage and the mother is in favor of it, by all means take the advice of the father. His advice is much better than the mother's."

FATHERS unquestionably take the measure of a man better than mothers. But why should be the best judge of the girls their sons contemplate marrying is more difficult to explain. It must be comparatively easy for any father to get the girl to hoodwink her prospective father-in-law, it being the nature of men of the father-in-law age to be kindly disposed toward young girls in general.

SURELY Nature, so careful to protect animal life through its instincts, should be trusted to do as much for humans. Yet it is possible for young things in love to trust to their own selection? The French say no and claim that their system is far more satisfactory in the long run. Your French father and mother later tell the truth that marriages are made in heaven. They believe in making marriages themselves after a careful investigation of from every angle not forgetting that of the "ade" or attraction. They not approve of brides who come to their husbands empty-handed, no matter how full of love their hearts may be. But, our learned professors to the contrary, the choice of the mate is never left entirely to the father, mother has a good deal to say about it, too.

ANOTHER conclusion arrived at and furnishing food for thought is: "That marriage after a courtship of less than a year is 20 per cent down on the scale of happiness."

KIDNAPPER IDENTIFIED BY URSCHEL

tures as the companion of Bates.
The old man's identification of the gangster arrested in Denver, climaxed the testimony of the day.
District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde asked Urschel if either of the two abductors were in the courtroom.
The blue suited old man walked across the room stopping directly in front of the gangster. He raised his right hand and unflinchingly pointed out Bates.
Under the questioning of District Attorney Hyde, Urschel launched into a thrilling story of his kidnapping, only parts of which had been revealed heretofore.
"They took us out to the car, a new small sedan, Kelly drove, Bates, with a machine gun in his lap and pistol in his hand, sat beside him," Urschel testified.
"We started to talk, Bates told us to shut up or he would blow Jurett's head off."
"They learned our identity from our bill folds. They said they both were hot and wouldn't be stopped and for me to get down in the back seat. They left Jurett out and then blindfolded me. They said if I saw or heard anything on the trip they would kill me and added they had a hypodermic with them."
"They traveled two hours and stopped and then drove to a farm yard."
This stop, previous witnesses had testified, was the home of Mrs. M. Coleman, a grandfather of Mrs. George Kelly, near Stratford, Okla., south of here about 60 miles.

Barron expressed amazement when told Los Angeles officers asked that he be investigated in the stabbing. He said he knew Dodson.

New Trial Is Asked Sentence Is Delayed

jury was not justified by the evidence.
Regardless of what the coroner's jury finds, Trial Judge R. R. Syer was expected to refuse a new trial when arguments are presented Friday. He was expected to pronounce the mandatory death sentence. In that event, Lamson's attorneys will appeal to the state supreme court, and the appeal will claim discovery of new evidence. In addition Defense Attorney Maurice Rankin cited nine other grounds for a new trial. They were that the jury received evidence of the court; that jurors separated during the trial without permission of the court; that the jury was guilty of misconduct; that the jury reached a verdict by means other than a fair opinion; that jurors were misdirected in matters of law; that state counsel were guilty of misconduct; and that the verdict was contrary to law and that the verdict was contrary to the evidence.

CHEST FUND ADVANCES TO $9,000 SUM

With new subscriptions rolling into the Chest fund daily, yesterday saw the grand total raised to $9,000.

All divisions of the volunteer organization did their bit toward the increase and detailed tabulations of the exact amounts raised by all branches was not available last night.

This is still far from the $17,200 goal set by the campaign committee, and the leaders emphasized that the campaign must move into high speed if it is to go over the top and raise the minimum budget required by the seven agencies for the coming year's work.

Response has been reasonably satisfactory in most quarters, but in others subscriptions show a tendency to lag, and the committee declared all classes of givers should recognize the great needs which are ahead for these agencies and give accordingly. If those most able to give will subscribe 75 per cent of the amounts they gave last year, the Chest will be filled to overflowing this week.

Final reports from the plant employees, the business district and the special gifts divisions are expected in the near future. The women's residential canvass is all but complete. People who have not been seen at home, factory or office are requested to telephone the Chest committee at Richmond 72, or call in person at the headquarters, Tenth street and Nevins avenue, and make their subscription.

There will be a meeting this week of the special gifts committee and one of the board of directors of the Chest to elect officers, it was announced. Both will be at the Hotel Carquinez at noon, on dates to be made public.
